

$5,000 Reward

will be paid to any person who can find one atom of opium, chloral, morphine, cocaine, ether or chloroform or their derivatives in any of Dr. Miles' Remedies.

This reward is offered because certain unscrupulous persons make false statements about these remedies. It is understood that this reward applies only to goods purchased in the open market, which have not been tampered with.

Dr. Miles' remedies cure by their strengthening and invigorating effect upon the nervous system, and not by weakening the nerves.

"I consider that there are no better remedies put up than Dr. Miles' Nerve, Anti-Pain Pills, and Nerve and Liver Pills. We have used them for years, and recommend them to many others. My wife is using the Nerve, and considers it the best medicine in the world. A lady friend of mine, who was almost a total nervous wreck, through my earnest solicitation has used several bottles of the Nerve with wonderful results."

Fine Farm For Sale.

I offer for sale privately an extra good farm situated about 3 miles from Mt. Sterling and about 1-4 mile from Spencer pike, containing 200 acres. This farm is all in grass with the exception of about 15 acres, and has been in grass for a number of years. Therefore, most of it is good strong tobacco land. It is well fenced, well watered, has a good tenement house, tobacco barn, and large corn crib on it, and lays well; every acre can be cultivated. There is a church, school-house and R. R. station within 1-2 mile of it. This place has two different passways to it from the pike, and now has a good wire fence running through it which divides it into two farms of about 125 acres, and 75 acres each.

Will sell as a whole or sell separately. For further information see J. ROGER GATEWOOD, 26-1f Mt. Sterling, Ky.

He Gave It Away.

Numberless are the stories told of George Washington. Upon one occasion, while the American army was in camp, Washington heard that the colored sentries were not altogether reliable. One night, therefore, when the password was "Cambridge," the General went out and walked up to a colored sentry.

"Who goes there?" cried the sentinel.

"A friend," was the reply.

"Advance, friend, and give the countersign."

"Roxburgh," said Washington.

"No, sah," replied the soldier.

"Medford," said Washington.

"No, sah," was the response.

"Charleston," said Washington.

The sentry lost patience. "I tell you, Massa Washington," he said emphatically, "no man go by here without he say 'Cambridge,'"

FATHER 80-MOTHER 76

The aged father and mother of a prominent Boston lawyer safely carried through the last two winters by

Vinol

The son says: "My father and mother owe their present strength and good health to Vinol. During the last two trying winters neither of them had a cold, and were able to walk farther and do more than for years. I think Vinol is perfectly wonderful. It certainly is the greatest blood-making, strengthening tonic for old people I ever heard of."

We want every feeble old person in this town to try Vinol. We will return their money without question if it does not accomplish all we claim for it.

FAMOUS ABBEY OF SOLESMES

Treasures of Centuries with Ancient House to Be Sold—Art Lovers Mourn.

He who is a debtor smiles. There are debtors who are certain of their debts and never lose sleep but there are debtors by the thousands who are forced into the money market and who emerge with momentary relief and a burden of interest on the heart as well as on the money.

Debt makes many a line across the face and brings age to a hurried autumn.

The man who makes a debt should be sure he can smile after it is made.

When the day of maturity begins to round the home stretch and makes its rapid strides to the line of maturity—when the debtor counts his dollars that he thought would be on hand for his payments and finds that they did not roll in as he expected—when the day of debt payment passes under the wire and the man goes out to pay for the race he seldom goes like the man who has a bankbook in his hand for any emergencies.

Debt hovers over a home as a pending danger. Forgetfulness and worry take the place of bright spirits. Sleep flits around and will not settle to repose on the slumberer.

Like death, the merchant and the farmer who enter the list of debts face the same penalties.

The well-fed man begins to lose his buoyancies. His eye is not full of merriment and fire of former days.

The debtor feels guilty. Guilt will not permit a clear countenance. It carries a shadow, however faint.

The man who buys on credit is a debtor.

He is asking the dealer to lend him the money and he pays the interest. The dealer is not in business for his health any more than the real money lender. His interest is frequently larger.

There is a rule that men have found for keeping a strong eye and a clear conscience: Pay cash, keep the interest; debts will then not accumulate. It's an easy rule to give, but, oh, so hard to follow.—Memphis News-Scimitar.

Police Hoaxed by Clever Thief.

The police of Essen, Germany, are searching anxiously for a man who has hoaxed them in a most flagrant manner. Going with a hand-cart to the central police offices, where about fifty special officers are engaged, the man said he had been sent by the electric supply company to remove the bulbs, and that they would be exchanged for new ones before dusk. He was allowed to take nearly 200 bulbs, and several of the officers actually helped him to remove them. When darkness arrived and the new bulbs were not forthcoming the police rang up the electric light company to remind them of the omission. The reply was startling and left the police "very much in the dark." The company declared they had sent nobody for the bulbs, and knew nothing of the matter; in fact, only a fortnight ago they exchanged the old bulbs for new and more expensive ones. Then it dawned upon the police that the thief had allowed, and even assisted a bold thief to make a rich haul from under their very noses. Nothing has since been heard of the thief, and just now it is dangerous to speak about electric bulbs in the hearing of an Essen policeman.

Where He Had Seen Her.

"Where have I met you before?" he asked the young woman to whom he had just been introduced.
"I am quite sure we have never met," replied the stranger.
"I'm almost positive I've seen you a number of times," he persisted.
"That's quite possible," returned the stranger. "I'm the young lady who poses for the moving picture heroines." Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Equal to the Occasion.

First Actor (pulling the trigger of a revolver six times without effect)—Die, miserable villain.

Second Actor (with great presence of mind)—Your pistol has missed fire, Sir Randolph, but I am smitten with remorse for my many crimes, and will die according to your wishes.

Then he rolled on the stage in his death agony.

UPSETS THEORY OF LOMBROSO

Interesting Discovery of French Scientist Concerning the Arms of Criminals.

According to Dr. Lombroso, the criminal is a creature whose characteristics approach those of the anthropoid ape. One of the chief points in the chimpanzee, the gorilla and the rest is the enormous length of their arms, all of them having arms which reach below the knee. Therefore we should expect the criminal to be distinguished by the length of his arm and the question being one of some interest, Dr. Charles Perrier, a French medical man, undertook to examine into it. He conducted his investigations in the provincial prison at Nimes, and has just published some very curious results. He discovered that the great majority of prisoners have arms which are rather shorter than those of the rest of the population, a fact which seems completely to upset the theory of Dr. Lombroso. But the objection was made that criminals are all sorts and kinds, and that some distinction must be made between them. Dr. Perrier, therefore, classified his subjects, and found that the ordinary criminal, whose offenses against the state are those of cunning, usually has short arms, but that murderers and those who commit crimes of violence have arms which approximate to those of the ordinary man. It would seem, therefore, that the criminal is a short-armed, and not a long-armed man. It is a curious fact that coiners have remarkably short arms.

Balaclava Veterans.

The annual dinner of the Balaclava veterans, the survivors of the "Shi Hundred," is always an event of the London autumn. London counts the number that assemble to answer the roll call. This year there were present 11 men, all troopers, who followed Cardigan in the great charge which he himself pronounced either a "mad brained trick" or a "great blunder"—for bystanders differed as to the form of his characterization. When the remnants of the Light Brigade were mustered at the close of the action it was found that 113 officers and men had been killed and 134 wounded out of the 673 who had entered the fray. That of those whom Russian weapons did not slay 11 should be able 55 years later to pledge a cup to the memory of their old commander is evidence that the chances of longevity are not shut against even the participants in the most desperate of encounters.

Wild Dogs in Georgia.

E. M. Willingham at Southernland the old home of Gen. John B. Gordon reports that the wild dogs made a raid on his place a few nights ago and killed eight fine hogs, two cats, all of his chickens and several large turkeys.

The dogs have been roaming about the neighborhood for several weeks. They appear to gather at night, just like a pack of wolves, and make raids on farms and truck gardens where there is poultry or live stock. Steps are being taken to hunt the dogs and kill them.—Atlanta Constitution.

Florida Town's War on Sparrows.

Orlando has done one thing that every town of prominence has failed on, and that is to keep out the English sparrow, says the Orlando Reporter-Star. These pests are distributed all over the country in box cars, where they go to feed and are shut in, so when the car is opened in another town they simply fly out like any other tramp or hobo.

Orlando has managed to kill them so successfully that now when freight trains stop in Orlando with them on board the conductors of the freights say they refuse to get off.

B. J. OFFICIALS

To Washington to Confer With Attorney General Wickersham.

For the purpose of ascertaining whether or not it is operating in violation of the Sherman anti-trust law, and to understand more fully the attitude of the Federal Government towards the organization, the Burley Tobacco Society has sent a special committee to Washington to confer with Attorney General Wickersham and Assistant Attorney General Ellis.

The committee which left Lexington Tuesday night of last week, is President Clarence Lebus, Miss Alice Lloyd, head of the press bureau; Secretary G. A. Brooks, Colonel John R. Allen, chief counsel, and several members of the Executive Committee, including Representative C. C. Patrick and Commissioner of Agriculture M. C. Rankin.

Miss Lloyd when seen just prior to the departure of the committee said:

"About a week ago the society wrote to Acting Attorney General Wade Ellis at Washington, offering its services in the investigation of the society and its methods of business. Later we received a letter from Mr. Ellis saying that he would be glad if a committee from the society would wait on him Wednesday. We therefore appointed this committee."

A prominent burley man said: "Many conflicting reports have emanated from Washington and appeared in the press. If the Society is going to be prosecuted or persecuted we want to know it, so that we can prepare ourselves. The officers of the Burley Society believed it best to go direct to the fountain head of the national department to ascertain the status of affairs. They have a right to know who is instigating the reports of the pending prosecution, and a right to present their side of the matter before the government officials."

Wonderful Cross Country Flight of 23 Miles and Return

At Los Angeles, Cal., on January 18, Louis Paulhan, in his biplane, made what aviation experts consider the most remarkable cross country flight in history. He rode from Aviation Field to "Lucky" Baldwin's ranch, twenty-three miles away, circled the old Santa Anita racetrack and returned.

He covered an estimated distance of forty-seven and one-half miles in one hour, two minutes and 42 4-5 seconds.

The only test approaching it in this country was by one of the Wrights last fall, on a flight with an army officer from Washington to Alexandria.

Bleriot, Latham, Farman and Cody have made many one-way flights nearly as long. Cody flew forty miles in 63 minutes. Farman took a twenty mile ride to spend the day with a friend.

It is probable that the $10,000 prize will go to him.

Paulhan maintained an altitude of from 1,000 to 2,000 feet on his way over the valley. His highest point was 2,130 feet, as indicated by the instrument on his car.

Under him, speeding over the country roads, were automobiles, men on horseback and motorcycles, trying to be near the machine should Paulhan fall or have to descend. Mrs. Paulhan was in an automobile.
